

HONG KONG Tatler

The Big Screen

Will it ever be safe to fly again?
Danny Yeung's quest for rapid-testing lands him at the top of our first
Asia's Most Influential list

December 2020 $45

Small Talk

SUZANNE KALAN

The Los Angeles-based designer puts a modern spin on her Evil Eye Fireworks collection

Tell us about your latest line.
I wanted to modernise the Middle Eastern evil eye, which typically comes in turquoise, so I decided to design it with pink and blue sapphires, as well as emeralds, surrounded by my signature baguette-cut diamonds, which act as eyelashes.

What's been your biggest achievement to date?
When I was asked by Harrods to have my own standalone boutique, which opened in October.

Who would you love to see wearing your pieces?
A mother, daughter and grandmother.

What's your favourite gemstone?
Diamonds.

If you weren't a jeweller, what would you be?
A chef. I love cooking and eating fusion food.

What music do you listen to?
Charles Aznavour and Leonard Cohen, to calm my soul.

How have you been spending this year?
I've been locked down in the Los Angeles mountains with my husband and son. My daughter and business partner, Patile, has been locked down in Orange County.

SOUND ASLEEP

An avid yoga practitioner and health coach, designer Ann Korman has launched the Dreamscapes collection under her fine jewellery brand, Ark. Sacred symbols are sculpted using twists of yellow gold that are set with dazzling diamonds.

Pendant and earrings in yellow gold set with diamonds by Ark Fine Jewelry

GREEN TO GOLD

The colour green dominates Ilia's latest high jewellery collection, which brings jade to the forefront. A decadent necklace is undoubtedly a standout piece, featuring dragon and phoenix ornaments carved from slabs of jade. Delicate rice pearls are strung together, as are ruby and emerald beads, which add even more colour to an already luxurious creation.

Necklace in white gold set with Akoya pearls, jade, rubies, emeralds and diamonds by Ilia x Scavia